Q: Coloured block with custom border - Effectively a coloured box I am trying to get the effect of a coloured box with a custom border, where the border of the box is a different colour from the background of the box. I have managed to construct the coloured square using `{diagram}` to produce the image in the attached MWE, where I need to adapt the color to highlight the different border from the background of the box. The code I have is:

\documentclass{article} \usepackage{tikz} \usetikzlibrary{shapes} \begin{document} \begin{tikzpicture}[rounded corners=2.5] ode [rectangle, inner sep=4mm] {}; ode at (-2,5.5) [draw=red, fill=white, text width=12mm] {}; ode at (-2,-5.5) [draw=blue, fill=white, text width=12mm] {}; \end{tikzpicture} \end{document}

Which produces:

So my question is: is there any way I can make a background color and a different border color that are both visible without having to draw the background of the node separately? A: you can use fill as well as text width.

\documentclass[border=5mm]{standalone} \usepackage{tikz} \usetikzlibrary{shapes} \begin{document} \begin

This is a free Flash presentation on Project Management. This project management introductory course contains the project management basics, stages and threats. The presentation is created in Flash, can be dropped on a thumb drive and run from any computer with Flash installed. This way, you can take the app with you anywhere. Can be launched on any PC that has Flash present on the drive. The course is organized into several sections, such as basics, life cycle, pitfalls, risks and graphs. The first chapter takes you through a few general definitions of what project management means. It comes with a few navigational controls located at the bottom of the window, like "Home", "Next" or "Previous". Read about each project's stage and pitfall. Project Management Tutor also offers detailed information about the life cycle of a project (e.g. initiation, planning, evaluation, review), along with different traps that you can bump into, from the design phase to its completion. Learn what are the risks you might encounter. What's more, the app also comes with a section about risks, which informs you of the importance of anticipating the issues that can appear during the entire life of the project. From the "Control" menu, you can play, rewind, loop, and step forward or back. Check the definition of every important term. The glossary provides simple yet useful definitions of the most important key terms from a project, like activity, task delay, Gantt chart, resource leveling or float. All the explanations can be copied to the clipboard and used in any document. Plus, the presentation can be switched to full screen or zoomed in. The 9,000-square-foot office building, located in a 7,000-square-foot property at University Avenue and Belfast Road, will be named after a local war hero, war widow and World War I veteran. The property, which will ultimately include a 2,500-square-foot storefront unit at 10 Glasgow St. S., was purchased for $5.56 million back in July. Two adjoining properties, at 27-29 Glasgow St. S. and 2 College St., were combined to form the development site. A third property has also been purchased and is being planned for construction in two phases, with the first phase being a 2,000-square-foot, two-story space and the second phase being a 4,500-square-foot three-story office building. The architect's rendering of the mixed-use development. "The driving force for us is economic redevelopment on a very well-established site. The area is great and the history of the area is amazing, said Kristi Baxter, director of development at Cactus Road Properties. "We don't see these parcels being developed in any other location in this city in the future." Baxter envisions the Glasgow Street and College Street buildings as a catalyst for redevelopment on these sites, which currently provide two municipal parking lots. He believes this location provides excellent opportunity for development. "A lot of attention to detail was paid to making the buildings as respectful of the building stock and the location as possible, which is the most important thing from an architectural perspective, said architect David
