Download: www.slock.fun How to Use: Simply download the exe file from the download page, and run the program. It will add a new shortcut to the desktop and the program will automatically begin adding a new passcode for you. If you get a message that "No code in this level." or "Wrong passcode, try again," you need to enter a new passcode, click the other button below. You can also search the program via the search function to find all the levels at once. The newest shortcut will be marked by a green circle. You are given a 100 attempts to enter the correct code. If you need more, you can increase it. (see instructions below) You must enter the passcode and click "Save" if you want the computer to be locked. You can only unlock the computer by entering the same passcode and clicking "Unlock". How to Use "save code" The passcode is not stored permanently in the computer, it is automatically deleted after about 10 minutes. The only way to save the passcode is to click the "save code" button. If the passcode for the level you are on is incorrect or you want to save it to your profile, simply click on the "save code" button (the circle is green) Choose where you want to save it. There are four places, the most commonly used is probably "My Documents". If you choose another location, click save. Then exit the program. After the computer has been locked using the passcode you saved, open the program again. A new passcode will be automatically generated and added to the program. If the program asks you for the passcode you saved, enter it and click ok. You can store up to 3 passcodes in the program. Just select the passcode you want 09e8f5149f

By default, it disables CTRL+ALT+DEL and ALT+TAB. However, it will also disable any other key combination that is being used by another program. That is why you must turn it off in the control panel. NOTE: Once you are in full command mode, CTRL+ALT+DEL will be the default key combination. This is different to the regular Ctrl+Alt+Del key combination, which will be disabled until you change the key combination. This means that you will be unable to log on to your computer without the correct code. No matter what method of logging on you use, it won't work. The key combinations you use, will not be accepted by S Lock. If you use non-standard login method like DOS Password, they will not work either, until you disable the standard login method. To disable the standard login method, you need to go to the control panel, then click on the "Power Options" button.
