The guide cover 6 guides the hose 7 extending between the suction motor 1 and the separating unit 3 into a predetermined bent-up direction and seals the inside of the tube against dust, air and the like in the event that the suction motor 1 is stopped. The guide cover 6 is provided with a suction passage 8 which communicates with the outer periphery of the separating unit 3. The suction passage 8 is open to the atmosphere, and communicates with a vacuum passage 9 to which a suction port is connected. The hose 7 also communicates with the vacuum passage 9, and contains a vapor flow passage 10 for preventing the occurrence of air bleeding at the outlet of the vacuum passage 9. The vacuum passage 9 is a line-shaped vapor passage, which is open to a suction port 12 connected to an exhaust port 11. The exhaust port 11 is connected to an engine exhaust port of the vacuum cleaner. The vapor flow passage 10 is provided with a plurality of line-shaped vapor passages 10a arranged in parallel to one another. The exhaust port 11 communicates with the respective vapor flow passages 10a. Referring to FIG. 2, when the motor is driven, air and dust, which have passed through the hose 7 and the separating unit 3 are sucked through the vapor flow passage 10 and the exhaust port 11
