The volume comes with: Canine vaccine vaccination How to vaccinate the cane How to register the Cane's Microchip ID . . . The book is about diseases that can be transmitted to the cane A quick look at the book shows that it is a book about the cane and the Cane's Vaccination. Here is what I understand out of the book: The Vaccination is called Cane Vaccination. The Cane Vaccination has three forms, there is a basic Cane Vaccination, an advanced Cane. The basic Cane Vaccination is done to prevent most of the diseases that can be transmitted to the cane. The advanced Cane Vaccination is done to prevent the diseases that can harm the Vets. A vaccine is a preparation that helps to prevent infection. I am not sure why there is an Advanced Vaccination for canines. The Cane Vaccination is done by a Vet. The canines are vaccinated at the age of 8 weeks. A vaccine is injected by a Vet in the shoulder area. There are some diseases that can be transmitted to the canines. Some diseases can be prevented by Vaccination. Best of luck. Regards, Shravan A: The "canine vaccination" refers to the practice of vaccinating a dog against a range of diseases. It is usually done at around 8 weeks of age, and protects against diseases such as distemper, adenovirus, parvovirus, and parainfluenza. The same vaccine may be given every year. There are other vaccines that may be given in the same injection, such as rabies vaccine. These vaccines may have limited protection against a specific disease, or may be given at different intervals. The specific information you're looking for may be found here: 82138339de
