MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA - JANUARY 12: Adél McIver poses with her

boyfriend Austin O'Neil and her dog Lola after she earned gold at the Australian Open in Melbourne, Australia,
January 12, 2016. McIver became the first ever deaf tennis player to compete at a grand slam.

The first deaf tennis player to compete at a grand slam is still competing against able-bodied players, but she has been on the list for a few years now. Adél McIver, an 18-year-old Australian who's ranked

---

18 in the junior rankings, is the first deaf player to compete at a grand slam in nearly 20 years and is currently competing at the 2016 Australian Open. She becomes the 13th player to compete at Wimbledon, which is currently being held in

---

London. That's more players than there are at the Australian Open. The fact that McIver is deaf means she can't hear the chatter of the crowd, and that can be quite difficult, so she's coming up with as many strategies as possible.

When her coach told her about a particular coach, she made sure to look at the players to see which one she could take the best advantage of. For example, she's learned the Australian crowd's favorite is Grigor Dimitrov. That makes sense when you consider he won the tournament the last two years. She's had to come up with her own tactic to get her own game down. 09e8f5149f

---
