Step into the shoes of twin-tailed pink slug Junko and spring into an outrageous universe packed with deadly traps, dreadful diseases, date-like objects and pretty much anything you can think of! Watch out though, because our slimey little characters have an insatiable appetite for targets... you know, er... candy! Costume set available in the real world. Reviews A fun-filled parody of first-person shooters set in a cartoon world. Not recommended for those who find the title offensive. GameSpot An off-kilter parody, Gal*Gun 2 has its heart in the right place. It's certainly more polished than the original, and it has a real sense of style. Even so, the extreme gameplay and thoroughly bizarre setting make Gal*Gun 2 an odd ride. Eurogamer When it first popped up on the Nintendo Wii, the game was received with both excitement and trepidation. The thing that worried people was the relentless targets-to-death humour that permeated the concept. The absolute pinnacle of target-and-kill action, Gal*Gun is a hit-or-miss proposition - and the target is a wussy bunny. But now, after some fitful development time, the carnage-adoring wannabe Fatal Fantasy-girl can take her turn on the Splatter-strewn dojo mats. PlayStationLifeStyle.com Gal*Gun 2 is a strange, silly love letter to first-person shooters that's as funny as it is violent. It's a wild, unexpected, and thoroughly outrageous experience that, for as much as it is an homage to other games of its kind, still allows you to feel

Jazz Records (Barry Coe) Jazz Records (Barry Coe) Ltd is an American record label founded in 2009 by Barry Coe. It was created to release reissues of Contemporary Jazz releases, and this was followed by the release of an album of re-arranged songs by jazz artists titled Self Titled. The primary focus of the label is contemporary jazz and popular music, (or at least jazz influenced pop music). The label exists in house of the sole individual owning all the copyright and trademark to the label. As a small company created by a sole individual, Barry Coe heads up most aspects of the company including production, distribution, marketing, negotiations, and label management. Coe works as both an artist on the label and a label manager. The company's first release was a re-release of the 1919 original recording of Al Jolson's "When My Dreamboat Comes Home" under the new title "My Dreamboat's Coming Home". The re-release also made a sampling of a 1939 alternate take of the recording, recorded by Frank Sinatra and his orchestra. The company's first release was also a re-release of Ray Charles' Al Freeman's "It's Easy To Remember" which was re-recorded by the contemporary jazz unit Orleans Avenue with the reworked title of "Memories of Al". It was released November 1, 2009. After some initial success the company produced even more re-recordings of American jazz and pop music. The company's second release was a re-recording of composer and arranger Nelson Riddle's "Sleepy Hollow" from the film The Nun's Story. The soundtrack recording was released November 22, 2010.
