"Since you now lack authority over your own body, you must obey whatever the colony command posts dictate."Multilocular micropapillary leiomyosarcoma with clinicopathologic analysis of a series of 49 cases. Multilocular micropapillary leiomyosarcoma (MMML) is an underrecognized biphasic neoplasm with characteristic histopathologic features that may lead to confusion with high-grade sarcomas, especially pleomorphic liposarcoma. We report the first detailed clinical, pathologic, and genetic assessment of MMML. A series of 49 cases of MMML was identified through examination of paraffin-embedded tumor blocks and consultation at the NIH. Clinical and pathologic features, as well as immunohistochemical studies, genetic analysis by fluorescence in situ hybridization, p16-INK4a copy number, and cytogenetic microarray analysis were performed on tumors. MMPL were found at predominantly distal extremity sites, with a predominance of subcutaneous distribution. The median diameter of the MMML tumors was 8 cm. The median mitotic count was 15/10 high-power fields, with a range of 5 to 90. Cytogenetics identified 8 cases with t(12;16)(q13;q11) as the sole alteration. p16INK4a CN was altered in 85% of MMML. MMML showed expression of ER and PR, but no reactivity for p53,  $\beta$ -catenin, or Her2/neu. MMML behave like higher-grade sarcomas, albeit more indolent. Diagnostic immunohistochemical studies and genetic testing may help pathologists distinguish MMML from other sarcomas with similar histopathologic features.the following \*.exe apps do not work: TSROBBR.exe (Take Screenshot--our scenario.exe root process) DriverSsn.exe (VPN session manager) MedianHwNdx.exe (drive level health and availability monitoring) HRDB.exe (Hardware inventory) Tweakers.exe (Hardware speculation and TSROBBR.exe) admin.exe (User profile manager)

Dedicated fans are so awesome. Well, usually. They're not as awesome when they make a habit of "bleeding" the seats or carpeting their favorite venue. Case in point: a man who went to see Metallica's April 23 concert in Atlantic City, NJ, pulled his leg out of an opening in his seat. One might have thought that would be enough to satisfy Metallica's wrath, but their security and the venue's staff didn't take well to the incident. According to an article by NBC Philadelphia, a security guard confronted the bleeding band fan by threatening to drag him away from the stage. The venue's staff, a typical part of the show experience these days, took this sort of thing a lot more seriously. The venue warned the bleeding concertgoer that he would be arrested. But, rather than backing down, the fan decided to continue to bleed on stage. The fan was ultimately carried off the stage by three off-duty police officers who then handcuffed him, according to NBC Philadelphia. Metallica followed their show by announcing a fan will be receiving a car, valued at over $10,000, as the gesture of apology for the incident.[Hematological status of winter-resistant, summer-acclimated populations of the common lizard, Lacerta vivipara in the vicinity of water reservoirs and central Europe]. Comparative data on major erythrocytic indices and leukocyte content in winter-resistant and summer-acclimated Lacerta vivipara are given. In addition, the data on seasonal fluctuations of the major parameters are presented and compared with the data obtained for the central European Lacerta. Under seasonal changes some alterations in the erythrocytic indices are observed. The most significant alteration is observed in the number of erythrocytes, which rises in winter by 19-25% and drops in summer by 15-24%. The haematological data are related with the role of the frog-eating lacertid in the functioning of the Central European
