DeadOS is the only zombie outbreak simulation where you control every aspect of the virus and humanity's survival. The entire simulation is built around a completely customizable city, with over 3200 unique types of buildings, (most of them customizable), creating nearly endless hours of gameplay variety. Once you choose your city block, you begin the simulation, and have the power to insert units into the world or remove them before the end of the game. You can control everything, from a crowd of people moving down the street, to a specific zombie that you can fight one on one, to a single soldier that you can order to patrol his sector. There is no endgame in DeadOS, this is a sandbox game where there are no predetermined end outcomes, in fact there is no way to play the game through to the end without using your own discretion and judgement. You have no ammo, only a hand, which can be used to pick things up, and a cell phone which has a limited range but can be used to send units away and will even allow you to scan windows from far away. The goal of the game is to survive. Which you can do, if you have a plan. All the units in the world are part of a strategy you have in mind. You can plan ahead and build for when your city will be most vulnerable, or you can just have a single soldier kill every single zombie in his area and use the open space to carry out another plan. The gameplay is based on a free interactive logic. You can use any concept you can think of to control the game. You can send your units to fight zombies that are already roaming, or you can use your resources to create new buildings and weapons to fight more zombies. In this early access version of the game, we have a few key features to test drive. Basic IOS support Improved controls Saving DeadOS is a survival sandbox. The entire simulation is completely user generated. There are no pre-programmed end-game scenarios or "the one" strategy to play. There is no scripted gameplay or predetermined plan that will lead to a final encounter. There are two themes that can be used in DeadOS: Deadzone and Danger. Actions in the Deadzone are similar to vanilla DayZ. They do not actually end the game, but provide a sense of security that zombies will not appear in the immediate future. You can manipulate your current reality as much as you want in the Deadzone. The Danger theme focuses

The Paladin of Light is widely known as the most powerful weapon guardian of the six Divine Beasts of Light. It is an extremely rare monster with a rarity of 0.000023, and sometimes, it appears in the wild. FEATURES Character "Ability": The ability of the Paladin of Light changes each time you increase your level, allowing you to use a more powerful ability! When your ability reaches level 30, you can use a new ability! Become "S Commander" of the LGS: At the start of each dungeon battle, you can change the role of your paladin to "S Commander" to use a more powerful ability. When the party leader, that is the paladin, makes a skill card or a treasure card, that card is displayed on the Dungeon Slate. Attribute-Based Battle: Upon entering Attribute Sanctuaries, you can battle with the new Attribute system! Attribute system gives more variety to your battle against enemies. Meanwhile, when there is a battle with a powerful monster, the black hex symbol will appear. Only upon defeating this monster will you receive a card from the white hex symbol. There are many Attribute Cards from various attributes in this DLC, allowing you to get extra cards and upgrade abilities! Card destruction in the Attribute system will completely break any attributes you don't see in the card, unlike the existing system. Some characters have acquired magic without an ability increase. For example, Silver Paladin and S Commander. However, it is possible to increase their abilities by using the Attribute cards! "Attribute Dungeon": The third battle map that can be completed within a single week is a special Dungeon. When you defeat a special monster, they will appear on the Dungeon Slate in this dungeon. "Permanent Dungeon Slate": In addition to being used for the 3 map-based dungeons, permanent dungeons are now also available! Unlike standard dungeons that are cleared every week, permanent dungeons can be cleared once and will keep the battle statistics without clearing. Players cannot access the legend on the permanent dungeon slate and cannot reset progress if they lose an ability, so be careful! "S Blaster-fire Mode": Players can complete dungeons in a special setting where you can summon your S blaster fire. It's a different type of battle where the cannons automatically fire and the attacker automatically misses. "Special Edition Pack": "Wizardry of the Ancient Gods" Special Edition! With class 3/7 equipment, go to the front entrance and use a tornado spell. At the initial tornado, move up a little and let your anima drop down. This is a great indicator of where your target is. Hold down your attack buttons and use physical attacks and magick attacks. (If your character has a high attack amount and can put out more than one attack at a time, you can keep using it on the target until you miss, and then use a physical attack or magick attack immediately instead.) Once the tornado ends, you must follow the anima and go into the back of the dungeon and use a new spell to blast the golem back out of the dungeon. Once it's out, physically attack the golem as a normal attack to get it to drop health. Don't attack it any more than you need to. You will only have one knockdown. If you are attacked, magic damage/attack spell, or have an effect that changes your attack (and it's not KNOCKDOWN or BLAST), do NOT attack. Instead, use an attack or a spell that hits 1-4 targets (in a timely fashion). Use a level 1 spell to heal yourself if you need to (meaning, you're missing health). If you are at full health, use a level 2 spell to heal yourself. HINT: You can use a level 1 spell to heal yourself if you know the area of the dungeon really well and have a good idea of where the golem is. After damaging the golem with a level 2 spell, heal yourself by using a level 1 spell to heal yourself. After casting a level 2 spell, you are basically wasting your mana. You should heal yourself instead of casting the spell. Keep this strategy in mind as you play the game. "Advanced" level Enemies: Place a potted plant along the path and use a move spell on it to teleport to the center. Use a move spell on the elemental golem to have it follow you. Instead of using a wild spell to blast the golem, use a whirlwind spell to send it flying down the path until it hits the potted plant. It will fall over. You can use magick attacks on the golem while it is on the ground and then attack with physical attacks while it is on its back. The next time it gets back up, simply repeat the same steps. If you can destroy the

Toposim North Africa provides a detailed high resolution terrain mesh for the entire North African region including the Western Sahara in Africa. To recreate the landscape of an ancient land with no discernible borders, Toposim North Africa features a multi-level terrain grid, ranging from 10m up to 50m, at 1km intervals. The textured polygonal terrain elements are based on aerial photographs and satellite images to provide accurate data of large land areas, maximising the detail and accuracy of this amazing region. Other features include: Multi-level terrain grid. Multi terrain tile. Modern textured and non-textured polygonal terrain elements. All land features, such as mountains, hills and lakes, are accurate to scale and in their correct positions. Have fun flying over the Sahara desert, a true desert in a picture perfect way. The assets in this package cover most of the regions North Africa; including Algeria, Morocco, Tunisia, Libya, Egypt, Sudan, Western Sahara and more. The region can be simulated as a single terrain and populated in one go, or saved in multiple terrains at once. To open the terrains, simply follow the steps below. Part 1 - Open Map Loader 1. Run the downloaded Map_Loader.exe 2. Select Toposim North Africa from the drop down menu. 3. Click on the Open Map button 4. Wait for the Map to load and then you are ready to go! PROJECT SUMMARY Ductal carcinoma in situ (DCIS) is the most common non-invasive cancer among premenopausal women. DCIS remains the most common neoplasia that radiologists encounter in mammography, and is also the neoplastic process that predominates in atypical ductal hyperplasia detected during benign breast biopsy. Given the low malignant potential of DCIS, it is important to accurately differentiate it from benign lesions and accurately classify tumors for appropriate patient management. In this project, we will integrate current state-of-the-art statistical procedures for both prediction and classification of DCIS histopathology to the problem of discriminating between radiologically-enhanced and radiologically- non-enhanced DCIS using magnetic resonance images. This will be accomplished through a combination of data analysis, machine learning and image fusion techniques. The goal of this project is to provide diagnostic and prognostic tools that can optimize the differentiation of these non-invasive breast lesions and be demonstrated to have the potential for transitioning to clinical usefulness. The specific aims of the project are: Aim 1. Model and evaluate the performance of predictive magnetic resonance imaging techniques to distinguish normal non-enhanced breast from breast tissue with low-grade atypia. In this aim, we will: a) train and evaluate supervised machine learning models using MRI data to differentiate between DCIS and normal breast tissue; and b) develop and evaluate statistical models using histopathology and MRI data to differentiate between breast tissue with low-grade atypia and normal breast tissue. Aim 2. Model and evaluate the performance of automated image segmentation techniques to segment the highly variable characteristics of DCIS
