final phases of an ambitious plan to kill off organic content on its platform — or at least greatly reduce the visibility of it — by the end of the year. The move is seen as a response to a growing awareness of how “fake news” on the platform is being spread by interfering with what people see when they search for news on Facebook, and the admission that some of it has gone viral. According to a report from The Guardian, the social-media giant is hoping to enhance the relevance of advertisements by turning its ad-display algorithm away from organic content. This means less of the “human-quality content” that users have come to expect on the site, which is beginning to look a lot like political discussion forums and other politically-driven websites. “We are not saying we are shutting it down completely,” David Kirkpatrick, Facebook’s VP of global politics and government, told the newspaper. “Just that the organic reach — the audience that sees the content and links, that goes on to a website and makes an interaction — will be smaller than we expect it to be.” Facebook’s growth has been fueled by its association with organic content. For example, the news section of the site is built largely around what people themselves post to the site, and what is dubbed the “social graph” — friends, family, and other people with whom you’re connected. Beyond that, as

NEW YORK (CNMMoney.com) -- The median price for U.S. homes jumped to an all-time high in May as sales on a year-over-year basis were also at a record high. Families looking to buy homes this year had to pay a median price of $188,900 in May, up from the March level of $175,700, according to the National Association of Realtors (NAR). The sales were up 8.5% from a year ago, which in turn was a record for May sales. Inventory continued to tighten and year-over-year sales decreased by 17.9%. As a result, the median price and the number of homes available for sale continued to rise. "This is the strongest in history," said NAR chief economist Lawrence Yun. The existing home sales report is the first of two that will be released Wednesday that will give insight into the level of home sales for the past two months. Other data will follow to give an idea of where the home prices are heading throughout the nation. ISLAMABAD: Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif's Rs 850 million donation to Army Chief Gen Raheel Sharif's charity 'Child's Play' has stirred up quite a controversy. The funds have been released to the Army Chief who announced it at the press conference. The Press Trust of India reports that this particular revelation has sparked intense speculation about the intended
