Ann Ronell Ann Ronell is a San Francisco art dealer and former educator. Early life and education Ronell was born in San Francisco, the daughter of Helen Graham (née Adler) and Lawrence Ronell. She was raised in the San Francisco neighborhood of Pacific Heights in a household with a financial background and a political family, with her father's side of the family being prominent liberal Republicans. Ronell obtained a bachelor's degree from the San Francisco Art Institute in 1973. She later attended UCLA and University of California, Berkeley. Career Ronell began selling art as a young adult, and thereafter worked as an independent art dealer, first in San Francisco and then in New York City. In 1978, she helped found the San Francisco gallery Betty Freeman, Ronell & Co. Ronell worked there until 1990, when she established her own gallery, Ann Ronell Gallery. Ronell has been a member of the Saatchi Gallery board of trustees and was the co-chairperson of the San Francisco Art Institute's Education Program from 1989-1990. In 2002, she curated the exhibition "Trouble and Art" at the Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art in Bentonville, Arkansas, showing the work of artists associated with the American Surrealist movement, whose work was often dismissed in the early 20th century as maudlin, or "trouble and art". In 2008, Ronell acted as the executor of the estate of the photographer Dorothea Lange, whose photographic work was featured in the exhibition Soul of the American Landscape at the National Gallery of Art. Personal life Ronell lives in San Francisco with her daughter, the children's book author Alexx Chambers, who has written about her mother's work
