It is located just off the main Colombo-Kandy road with the highway a couple of kilometers away. It is a village with traditional dwellings constructed using huge towering tree trunks and long bamboo stalks. Category:Populated places in Uva Province Category:Settlements in Badulla District Category:Settlements in Badulla District the imitator. What I don't know is how much the people who bought (and used) the BRT and what they were thinking about the bus along the way. 1) Economics. The idea was that the BRT would be a winning strategy and that buses were only "good enough". As this didn't happen, all "good enough" has now been pushed to the brink of mass usage as an alternative to subways. 2) Incompetence. It's widely known that the poor city has an incompetent transit system that is out of control. So, now there is no other choice than buses on a much longer route than the BRT. 3) Planning. Yes, I know it's a "geographic constraint" but it's one that even the best planners couldn't get around. 1) The BRT was considered to be a win-win for the T, as it would appear to have a lot of positive effects:
