What's new in The Castle Disaster 2:

The Castle Disaster 2 (, The Hellish Snowstorm) is a 2003 South Korean political satire film directed by Ryoo Seung-wan, starring Kim Myung-min, Kim Jong-soo, Lee Hae-jin and Ahn Sung-ki. It is the sequel to Ryoo Seung-wan's 1999 film The Castle and the second installment in the The Castle Disaster film series. It is based on a true story concerning the fall of the political career of Choi Soon-sil, the wife of former president and Park Chung-hee's brother Roh Tae-woo. The cast had never previously met each other on screen, but this led to a chemistry between the actors which was regarded as irresistible. It was one of the films that helped to create the Korean Wave in China, where it was popular with the Chinese audience. Synopsis The film traces the decline of scandalous and malicious chaebol (Chosŏn: 재벌, 財閥) Choi Soon-sil and her controversial do-anything-to-make-money daughter Choi Moo-hyun after their husband Roh Tae-woo, the former president of South Korea, collapses after years of corruption, self-enrichment, and media malpractice. While they are absent from public, a former president Kim Dae-jung's body is returned to Korea. Several former police chiefs and anti-graft officials, including Hong Ra-hyun, the film's antagonist, attempt to bring the case that made Choi Soon-sil famous to the court room. But more than the anti-corruption movements, sexual scandals among the political elite and the public are the driving factors behind Choi Soon-sil's and Choi Moo-hyun's downfall. They also save themselves from prosecution by threatening the corrupt political machine and the independent media into silence. Cast Lee Hae-jin as Hong Ra-hyun A former intelligence official who investigated the alleged election fraud perpetrated by former President Kim Dae-jung. He later formed a committee, called the Ergun, led by Lee Kuk-hyun (with Kwak Ji-min), and made the arrests against Choi Soon-sil and her family as part of his anti-corruption drive. In his book, Realpolitik: Corruption in South Korean Politics, Haejin comments that Hong Ra-hyun's way of dealing with corruption that "corrupts
