Installing the Edit Module With Map in edit mode (Ctrl+T) select the objects (aircraft for example) and choose "Make editable" from the context menu. Then start the Edit Module, one of the objects should be selected now. The Edit Module has a menu where you can configure some. In the following screenshot, the three aircraft are shown (two of them marked with red crosses) and the Edit Module is selected in the lower-right corner. Adding the Edit Module to the aircraft in FSX After you select the module from the stock tray, go to the Aircraft Browser, select the aircraft in which you want to add the module and choose the "Add to aircraft" button on the right, a new item will be added to the aircraft. Choosing the module to add to the aircraft The modules can be selected from the stock tray or from a folders list if you have downloaded a pack, in the following screenshot, the "Aircraft" folder is shown. The aircraft tree opens, select the aircraft where you want to add the module and press the "Add to aircraft" button on the right. The Edit Module, can be used for all stock content (car, boat, equipment and scenery) and also it's own modules. Please note, the existing Edit Modules cannot be deleted, they are part of the aircraft object. After you install it, you may need to enable it in the aircraft browser, in my case a few aircraft had this issue, and I simply had to right click on the aircraft object, select "open in edit mode" in the popup menu and select the Edit Module in the dialog which appeared. Opening the Edit Module The Edit Module has a menu where you can configure some options, like: PlotterPlots the vectors of the selected objects, a new window opens showing them. LagPlotPlots the lines of the selected objects showing the process and user time. New window showing the progress of the process. PyramidPlots the triangles of the selected objects, a new window showing them. Building the airfield a.k.a.
