FIFA 22 utilizes the “Player Impact Engine” — a new physics engine that affects more than 90% of decisions, like whether a player is tackled, shown the red card or whose throw-ins result in a goal, to create more realistic gameplay. GAMING DESCRIPTION The CONTROL SYSTEMS IN FIFA 22:

Sub-Processes: The game is powered by a new physics engine, the “Player Impact Engine,” which affects more than 90% of decisions, like whether a player is tackled, shown the red card, whose throw-ins result in a goal. The new AI engine in FIFA 22 uses player profiles to generate realistic behavior as players are presented with real-world situations. In attack, new options are available for passing and shooting, allowing for better responsiveness while being able to pass or shoot with more power and accuracy. New player motions are also on the focus, such as shooting, passing, dribbling, receiving and tackling. THE INTELLIGENCE SYSTEM IN FIFA 22: The “Intelligence System” in FIFA 22 is fully connected, deep-learning AI, which upgrades the in-game intelligence. The AI learns over time how to play as the player progresses, understanding the player’s tendencies and how they would interact with the opposition. The AI engine is connected to the match engine and thus adapts to game flow. AI can also intelligently adjust its game plan based on results of the previous match. The best players are more unpredictable to the AI, so teams must have an understanding of their player archetypes and how they'll react when in possession and under pressure. In FIFA 22, the AI in the six tactical elements will adapt from game to game, and the results will affect the decision making of the AI in the next game. The eight tactical elements include: Attacking Off-Ball Defending Ball Recovery Offence Transition Pressure Interception Physical Interceptions Short Pass Long Pass Defense Predicted Passing New Tactics: FIFA has added the category of "shape and structure" to its tactical system, making tactical awareness a fundamental part of FIFA 22. In FIFA 21, there are four categories of tactics: Manual: Where tactics

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor module, a method of fabricating the same, and a battery pack. More specifically, the present invention relates to a semiconductor module, a method of fabricating the same, and a battery pack, which enhance the degree of freedom and quality of mounting.

2. Description of Related Art

In recent years, a battery pack has been proposed, which includes a secondary battery module and a semiconductor module, such as an insulated gate bipolar transistor (IGBT), and controls charge-discharge of the secondary battery module. The secondary battery module is formed by mounting plural secondary batteries on a secondary battery mounting board. In order to enhance heat dissipation during charging or discharging, a heat radiating board having a thickness of 1 to 2 mm is arranged below the secondary battery mounting board. On the other hand, the semiconductor module is formed by mounting plural semiconductor elements on a semiconductor element mounting board. A heat radiating board having a thickness of 1 to 2 mm is arranged above the semiconductor element mounting board. FIG. 1 is a cross-sectional view schematically illustrating a prior art. Referring to FIG. 1, a semiconductor module 100 includes an insulating board 101, and a semiconductor element mounting board 105 fixed to one side of the insulating board 101. The insulating board 101 includes a plurality of pluralities of protrusions 102a and 102b. A plurality of through-holes 103 are formed through the insulating board 101 in positions corresponding to the protrusions 102a and 102b. The through-holes 103 are formed at intervals corresponding to intervals between the protrusions 102a and 102b. The plurality of protrusions 102a are vertically arranged on a surface of the insulating board 101, and the plurality of through-holes 103 vertically extend from a surface of the insulating board 101. The semiconductor element mounting board 105 is fixed to a surface of the insulating board 101 via bc9d6d6daa

Full-thickness rotator cuff tears are not associated with poorer quality of life. Although full-thickness rotator cuff tears (FTRCTs) are believed to be associated with poorer quality of life (QOL), few studies have evaluated this association. The purpose of this study was to evaluate QOL in patients with FTRCT and to compare QOL in patients with FTRCTs to that in patients with full-thickness supraspinatus tendon tears (FSTTs) or incomplete-thickness rotator cuff tears (ITCTs). A total of 937 consecutive patients with shoulder pain who were scheduled for arthroscopic surgical repair for rotator cuff tears were screened for eligibility. A total of 518 patients were enrolled. The University of California Los Angeles Shoulder Rating Questionnaire, Rotterdam Quality of Life Questionnaire, and Rotterdam Shoulder Specific-Score questionnaires were administered. The final study cohort included 188 patients with FTRCT, 77 with FSTT, and 381 with ITCT. Baseline patient demographics and tear characteristics were similar among the three groups. Mean follow-up time was 26 months (range, 10-50 months). Patients with FTRCT experienced significant impairment of activity ($p = 0.01$). Patients with FTRCT experienced the greatest loss of function in the domains of pain (p
