Lucifer, Archangel of light and order, rebelled against his creator and now is locked away in Hell. While playing video games while awaiting judgment, he reminisces on his spectacular fall and the time he had with his boyfriend. His evocative talking is accompanied by the beautiful music he created with his brother. Prologue: Lucifer's trial: A beautiful angel appears before Lucifer to try him on the charge of rebellion and dividing his creator's good. Lucifer is found guilty and will be exiled. Dystopia: Ten years after his exile, Lucifer is taken from Hell to the planet Pangea to undergo the trial of nature. Here he meets a psychopath named Mata, who rules over the planet with an iron fist. Lucifer is put in the prison of hell to relive his memories and reflect on his past. Heading Home: Three hundred years later, Lucifer arrives on Eden, the kingdom of his birth and childhood, and finds out that the humans who gave birth to him were wiped out by the demon, Deimos. To save the humans, he decides to return to the planet Pangea. Main Areas: Heaven Hell Pangea Transylvania Eden ??? Description: In the new post-apocalyptic world, a boy named Shinji is rescued by the inhuman and unstoppable soldiers, Rebuild, who offer him a new life. Soon, Shinji arrives on the Wastelands and meets Asuka, a well-known pilot of the Rebuild. She teaches him skills and helps him build his combat and relationship skills in this role-playing game about two adults. More... Review: This short free sci-fi RPG/turn-based strategy/human simulator/sport/simulation hybrid game takes place in the near future, where an atomic accident has caused a huge dust storm that has covered much of the Earth's surface. The only survivors are a race of nonhuman "gods" called UFMG's and some of their human allies. Humanity has been split into two factions: the humans and those who were regarded as enemy of mankind. Many of the common rules and morality of other humans have been suppressed in the UFMG's due to their repressive regimes. Tomorrow, humanity is going to have a final stand against the UFMG's, and the protagonist is to lead them. As in the majority of role-playing games, you have to start a new life to create your

Think Thief meets Monkey Island. Took me about two hours to make just a small portion of the world. A: Not exactly what you're looking for, but it might give you some ideas on how to take the elements you've listed and turn them into a game of your own. The Travelling Rogue (Or as I like to call it: Trespassing) Basically you're a traveling rogue on a quest of some sort. You've stolen a mask, a pair of boots, some spare clothes and a pistol from somewhere. And you're on the run. Basic goal of the game Your goal is to get from the beginning to end of the game with as few obstacles as possible, and on your way you get to solve puzzles, interact with people, find loot, get rare stuff and meet some strange creatures. In the end you're rewarded with the mask, boots, clothes and the pistol you stole. Stuff you need A world The world should be procedurally generated, so that every game of Trespassing is different. Houses should have different layouts Banks should have different amounts of money People should have different occupations People should behave differently (talking to you differently) Loot should be scattered through the environment Puzzles Puzzles would be a good part of the game, but they don't have to be that puzzle-y, so it's up to you to make them that way. Your clues for the puzzles may be found in the environment, people, or just people making really weird sounds. You may have to dig up bodies, poke them in the eyes and see what happens to them, for example. Dealing with people Your position and actions towards people will have a major impact on the game. Talking to people is always optional, and it may make or break the whole game Blocking them in if you don't want them to see you Talking to them and asking about stuff if you're planning a robbery and want to know about the things they have Sneaking up on people to rob them You can steal money from people You can steal stuff from people You can steal equipment (clubs, cars) from people You can steal clothes from people You can hide stuff in people Running the law The law follows you. If you do something it gets reported to the police, c9d1549cdd

The game was developed with the help of the Unity Engine 3D. The server on which the game is running is a dedicated server. All replicators are controlled by computers, just like in the original game. By the way, I am an enthusiast of the first game, I have been playing the updates from 2004 up until today and I love the theme and art style of the game.
