To understand the mechanism of vascular targeting of uveal melanoma by the soluble inhibitor angiostatin, we determined the methylation status and mutations of the 5' flanking region of the angiostatin gene (ASA) in metastatic and non-metastatic uveal melanoma cell lines and primary uveal melanoma specimens. The results show that the 5' flanking region of ASA in uveal melanoma cells is hypomethylated. 5' end restriction analysis and sequencing analysis revealed a frame-shift mutation in the p38 region of ASA in one uveal melanoma cell line. The mutation was confirmed by sequencing analysis of the ASA cDNA. In addition, analysis of the ASA gene in genomic DNA from a panel of uveal melanoma cell lines and of normal uveal melanocytes showed the presence of the ASA gene in all uveal melanoma cell lines and in some normal uveal melanocytes. These findings indicate that the ASA gene is under-methylated and mutated in uve
