There will be no stoppage to the main event as Khabib Nurmagomedov vs. Tony Ferguson will be a non-title fight. "It's not a 'preliminary' fight, it's a main event fight, and we'll see who the winner is," UFC President Dana White told ESPN on Tuesday. The co-main event has yet to be determined. Also, despite a first time appearance in Vancouver by Anderson Silva, who took on Thales Leites at UFC 208 last week, White said that "The Spider" will not be the main event of Saturday's card. He will not be replacing Michael Bisping, who will be fighting after Bisping dropped out due to injury. White said that it would be up to the respective UFC champions to figure out what their next fight will be. Though White said the card would have some of the biggest stars in the UFC, including Georges St-Pierre and Conor McGregor, he confirmed that the promotion would not be hosting Conor McGregor vs. Khabib Nurmagomedov, which is scheduled for February 14 at the UFC 205. Conor McGregor and Khabib Nurmagomedov will not be taking part in the co-main event of UFC 209. Getty Images The promotion, however, would be hosting some other potential superstar fights on the card, including a heavyweight showdown between Mark Hunt vs. Derrick Lewis and a welterweight superfight between Robbie Lawler and Tyron Woodley. White did not announce a debut for Bobby Green at UFC 209, but the flyweight prospect has been training in Las Vegas. "He's been doing great," White said. "He's getting better all the time."How to Make a Chocolate Brûlée Jean-Marc Voulze Chocolate Americans are big lovers of all things chocolate, but a few of us are not like the rest. We love chocolate the way it should be: slow, high-quality chocolate at its most exquisite. How we like it. I learned that in Vienna, Austria, many years ago. Today, the old town of Vienna is as quaint as it is charming; it is a crowded, muddled mass of high-end tourist shops, museums, and quaint restaurants filled with a unique European charm. One of the most famous restaurants in town serves the world's most exquisite handmade chocolate

Networks The pace of technological innovation, reduced development costs and the resulting increase in capital intensity are setting the stage for a dramatic increase in competition for incremental supply, particularly in high-growth markets, according to a new report from the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM). "The Quality of Strategic Investment: The Changing Outcome of the Global Automotive Industry," demonstrates that in many countries in the Asia-Pacific region, where critical investment decisions have been driven by domestic competition and politics, the competitiveness of the vehicle industry has increased, not declined. China's economic growth hit a 17-year high of 7.4 percent in the second quarter of 2017, but investment growth slipped to a 30-year low, according to China's National Bureau of Statistics. Building on the government's double-digit annual growth for the past 10 years, growth in fixed-asset investment (FAI) accelerated to 10.1 percent in the second quarter, up from 9.7 percent in the first quarter, while machinery and equipment investment contracted for the first time. On a recent visit to the U.S., China's Vice Premier, Wang Yang, urged President Trump to make quality manufacturing a key component of U.S. foreign policy. On July 18, the Vice Premier was addressing a forum titled, "Making the United States Great Again," at the National Press Club, where he noted that the United States has effectively "abandoned traditional alliances." He went on to say that "[the] United States must make an active contribution to maintain global peace and stability." Growth in demand for natural gas in the United States, particularly for exports, is poised to continue to outpace supply in 2017, according to the latest data from the U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA). In its Short-Term Energy Outlook, EIA forecasts domestic consumption of natural gas – driven by the use of liquefied natural gas (LNG) to supply the U.S. power sector and petrochemicals – to rise by 4.3 percent in 2017 and increase by 1.2 percent in 2018. Airbus announced a joint venture with China's Shanghai Aircraft Leasing to establish a factory in China with the capacity to produce 190 aircraft, worth €11 billion ($12 billion). The factory will be set up in Chengdu's Tianfu New
