Image caption Alexander McDowall, pictured in 2000, died in a crash at the famous road race known as the Skyline. A motorcyclist who fought for his life when he collided with a car on the side of the A1 near Dunnet Head has died. Alexander McDowall, 35, was airlifted to hospital at 19:37 BST with multiple injuries after the crash which happened at 13:00. A statement from the Scottish Ambulance Service said he died on Friday. The 35-year-old father of two was a karting champion who had recently been training to compete in the Isle of Man TT races. A spokeswoman for the Scottish ambulance service said Mr McDowall's injuries were "significant". 'National treasure' Dunnet Amateur Motorcycle Club posted a tribute to him on its Facebook page. The statement read: "As you will be aware, rider Alexander McDowall, former Scottish TT Champion died at 19:37 on Friday evening whilst riding on the A1 towards Dunnet in a crash. "Alexander was a national treasure and his family are deeply saddened by this sudden and tragic loss. "He was doing some training to compete in the Isle of
