Bomberman is back! For the first time, we are updating the Bomberman franchise and its characters for a whole new generation of players. Sporting the highest level of technical standards, Bomber Games is a unique and explosive multiplayer experience that puts you in the center of the action. POWER OF THE XBOX ONE Become the best Bomber in the world and save the planet by defeating your opponents in the ultimate battle to wipe out all the AI and the human players. - Intuitive one-button gameplay and easy to pick up - Incredible level of detail - Up to 8 players to play with or against - Full Xbox compatibility for classic games - Online multiplayer via Xbox Live About the game's author Philippe Vandel is one of the senior members of Bomber Games. This is his second long-time project for the video game industry and his first solo game. Not to mention his love of Bomberman and the power of the Xbox One. Some great vid that gives you the history of the game. Amazing resources if you like to play old games, all for free. Some great vid that gives you the history of the game. Playful 06-27 08:16 PM I think it is bad practice to check messages in several threads, it adds to confusion to a lot of people. Also, in my experience, most of the members respond to a single thread and if any other thread is up (which happen to be many times, depending on the time of the day), they just scroll down with no effort. This can also be a turn off for members, especially for new members. I feel that such a practice can be better dealt with by allowing several threads to be open at the same time. Apple has allowed it, windows has allowed it. Even forums with up/down ratings has been done. You can search for those forums. They are doing it. Atleast I dont see much confusion when there are several threads that are active. For simplicity, if you like that method
