I have a problem with Intel compilers and turbo C++. I want to compile a C++ program with the intel compilers. However, I am using tcc as a compiler.

When I install the intel compilers (compiler: C++, version: 9.0.1 (i586-winnt-6), toolset: turbo), it automatically setes up and starts the compiler, but turbo C++ is not an option. I can't remove it, and I can't choose between cl, cl.exe and tcc as compiler. If I select a.exe (the executable of cl.exe), it still doesn't work! There is something wrong with the installation! I have installed turbo C++ as follows: _Win32_Installer.exe QTInstaller.exe Intel_.exe T_sources_.exe Can somebody help me with this problem? A: Turbo C++ 2010 is a compiler version independent utility. The program launches "Turbo C++ Manager" which is the C++ version of the TCC32 shell. It has a mini-settings window which displays all the installed compiler versions and their settings. You can change compiler settings, run a compiler and
