Q: How to include dot (.) as a part of filename in url pattern in Django? I have a URL defined in views.py as `url(r'^download/(?P.+)/$', ...` which url-route in the browser looks as `The.+` part doesn't allow `".tar.gz"` to be included in the list of allowed file extensions, so I got this error: `Could not parse the remainder: "'ext'" from "'download/my_package_name.tar.gz'"` The problem is that as we can see, my file name includes a `."` and my question is, how to properly get it to Django to make it a part of the request URL so that my file name actually looks as `and` not as I've tried: appending `".tar.gz"` after `."+` part appending escaped `"\"` to `."+` part appending `."+` after `\` to `"download/(?P"+"V)"$"` part None of these has worked properly. I'm pretty sure my attempts are wrong. I hope I was clear in what I want to achieve. A: You need to escape the `.`, in order to make it a part of the regular expression. Otherwise it would be just taken as a single character, so the regex would match: `^download/my_package_name.tar.gz$` Changing your regex to: `url(r'^download/(?P\.(+))$', ...` will make the regular expression match: `^download/my_package_name.tar.gz$` See also: Django Regex Documentation 0 0 5 R o u n d - 0 . 0 5 1 0 8 8 4 9 t o 2 d p s . - 0 . 0 5 W h a t
