A: Variable names should start with a lowercase letter, and normally should be all lowercase. That's why your original code looks like this: `[UIApplication sharedApplication].applicationIconBadgeNumber = 2; NSLog(@"`%@`",[UIApplication sharedApplication].applicationIconBadgeNumber);` and prints : Program received signal: "EXC_BAD_ACCESS". [Switching to processes 0x1ed7000] You should change to `[UIApplication`

sharedApplication].applicationIconBadgeNumber = 2; NSLog(@"`%@`",[UIApplication
sharedApplication].applicationIconBadgeNumber);

And the log will print 4

The present invention relates to a permanent magnet motor and more specifically to a novel method and structure of permanently magnetizing an armature coil of a permanent magnet motor. Armature coils of permanent magnet motors may be permanently magnetized by heating the coil in a furnace to a temperature in the range of 2000xc2x0 F. to 2525xc2x0 F. (1120xc2x0 C. to 1270xc2x0 C.) until the desired level of magnetization is reached. As an alternative, magnetization of the armature coil may be accomplished by employing a radio frequency (RF) generator and a cooperating armature coil. Typically, the RF generator generates a magnetic flux field of a frequency which is effective to induce a magnetic flux in the magnetizable or soft magnetic material of the armature coil. By varying the frequency of the RF generator, the intensity of the magnetic flux field may be varied to correspondingly vary the intensity of the magnetic flux induced in the armature coil. A representative combination of RF generator and armature coil of a permanent magnet motor is shown in U.S. Pat. No. 4,757,961 entitled Permanent Magnet Motor Having Frequency Controlled Soft Magnetic Material. The present invention is a novel method and structure of magnetizing a permanent magnet armature coil which have been developed to afford significant economic benefits for a variety of applications. The invention teaches a method of permanently magnetizing a permanent magnet armature coil of a permanent magnet motor. The coil is initially exposed to a magnetic flux field of a predetermined frequency which is effective to induce a selected magnetic flux in the armature coil in accordance with a predetermined magnetization profile to
