Since the introduction of AutoCAD Product Key in 1982, its market share has increased dramatically. In the field of CAD, only two other programs have outsold AutoCAD Activation Code: AutoCAD Full Crack LT (formerly AutoCAD Full Crack 2D) and AutoCAD Architecture. GfxCAD GfxCAD is an all-in-one graphics-related software package with CAD and BIM functionality, which integrates with the Autodesk Design Suite. Autodesk has announced the acquisition of GfxCAD, which includes the software and services, for $130 million. The acquisition is designed to support GfxCAD, which has over a billion downloads and is used by nearly 30 million people worldwide, and Autodesk's ecosystem of applications, such as Autodesk Inventor, Autodesk Fusion 360, and Autodesk ReCapure. Autodesk also announced that users who already own the GfxCAD software can continue to use and add to their existing installations. The GfxCAD team of approximately 1,200 members will also continue to support existing customers. "The acquisition of GfxCAD will create significant long-term value for Autodesk and its shareholders by offering Autodesk customers additional software and services through GfxCAD, providing Autodesk customers with a competitive advantage in the design software market, and allowing Autodesk to continue to capitalize on its lead as the software leader in design software."
