Answer :Yes, you can!Centre for Ophthalmic Sciences The Centre for Ophthalmic Sciences (COS) at the University of Toronto is a multidisciplinary, collaborative centre in Toronto, Ontario. It is composed of the largest research group in Canada devoted to the study of ocular disease and vision. It consists of some 200 active researchers, supported by an equally large complement of fellows, technicians, and administrative staff. History The Centre was established in 1960 through the generous support of the governments of Ontario and Canada. Dr. Ella Potter, a former Chair of the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Toronto, envisioned the creation of a unit in ophthalmology capable of undertaking basic and clinical research related to the diagnosis and treatment of ocular disease. Dr. Potter was joined by an Advisory Committee of prominent ophthalmologists from the University and from around the world. The Advisory Committee included Dr. Graham White, a noted British ophthalmologist and the Secretary of the Royal College of Surgeons, and Dr. P. Beeson Parrish, a distinguished American ophthalmologist. In 1962 Dr. Potter, together with Dr. Graham White, drafted a c6a93da74d
