(1).39.Q: How to close an Android app programmatically I have an open-source Android app that I created, and I'd like to make it so that when a user clicks "Cancel", the app terminates. All I could find is that you can kill a process from another process (from ActivityManager), but that would never work for me because my app is not in the foreground.

How can I do that? A:

Use

`java.lang.Process.exit` Q:

Laravel (5.5) - An exception occurred while executing 'INSERT INTO `relations` ... : (2222, "Column'relation s.relation_id' cannot be null") I'm making a simple relationship in Laravel 5.5 with many-to-many. The structure of my relationships table is relations

relations_table_id
relation_id relations_table_type relations_id
relations_table_name relations_table_value

relations table_id
table_name table_value
In the controller, I save the relationship in the relations table. public function create(Request $request) { $relations = new Relations(); $relatio

type = $request->relations_table_type; $relations->relations_table_name = $request->relations_table_name; $relations->relations_table_value = $request->relations_table_value; $relations->save();
    return redirect('/relations'); } In

the view, I tried to create a relationship.
